NCVPS Teacher Receives “Master Teacher” Status with SAS Curriculum Pathways

SAS just completed the second year of its Teach 3 Challenge, Master Teacher program for users of SAS® Curriculum Pathways®. Participating educators are committed to enhancing teaching and improving learning outcomes through the effective integration of technology into instruction. The program offers teachers opportunities to

- Network with like-minded educators
- Develop instructional plans with the support and feedback of master teachers and specialists
- Earn documentation toward valuable CEUs
- Build their professional portfolios
- Become approved SAS Curriculum Pathways speakers
- Receive assistance for conference presentations while bringing attention to the innovative programs and dedicated professionals at their schools.

Teach 3 participants make an investment in SAS Curriculum Pathways by integrating three unique resources into instruction (per quarter) and sharing resources with a minimum of three faculty members, on three separate occasions. Upon successful completion of these requirements for two consecutive years, participants are awarded Master Teacher status. Maguy Yancey, NCVPS Spanish Dept. Chair and French/Spanish/ESL instructor recently completed the SAS Teach 3 Challenge and was awarded the Master Teacher status. Yancey commented, “It was a rewarding experience to participate in a 2 year pilot program with SAS Curriculum Pathways. As an instructor, it helped me design formative assessments for my French and Spanish courses, reflect on my teaching and students' learning”.
